JAMES H. WALLACE

On Parting the Hair.

If there be anything upon which the gods look down with disgust, it is the spectacle of an able-bodied young man parting his hair in the middle. These divinites are charitable towards that part of the human anatomy which disports a brass ring, a pinkbeak watch-chain, or a resplendent paste diamond, but they avert their benignant faces and draw together their celestial eyebrows, and their divine stomachs grow queasy, when that sight of transcendent silliness—a human being ploughing a furrow through the center of his head—is presented to their vision. Respectable mortals are also nauseated by such puppyism, such poodle-doghood. Its indices are unfailing. When a rut is cut through the center of the noddle, the vacuum beneath seldom ferments with the rising principles of life—brains. No brain can stand the wear and tear of such cerebral agriculture.

When you see the hair pitched up and gummed close to the sides of the head, and rest your eye upon the inevitable trench, set down the owner for a sloppy-floppy, empty-headed, purposeless, silly, flabby, a mere piece of human jelly, a floating oyster, pulpy and tasteless, just languid and listless enough to keep the trench from being filled up. The stomach of human society is strong as that of the casewary—but not strong enough to digest the parting-the-hair-in-the-middle nuisance. It acts like Don Quixote's Balam. It is a perpetual mustard plaster, a peripetetic puke.

When you see a fellow that splits his ringlets by the rule of three, and makes a proportion for exact distances when he combs his cranium, you can search his pockets and not be indicted for robbery. A mortal affluent enough for this diversion has no need for money. He would sacrifice a thousand dollars for his father rather than one particular hair should struggle from its file. You may pinch his ear, tweak his nose, and tramp on his corns—he can't fight, it would rattle his ringlets, and dam up the mathematical continuity of the labored groove chiseled through chunks of bear's oil and deoayed odors of castile soap, tobacco-smoke, and cinnamon drops.

Young man, eschew this stupid effeminacy. Rather than part your hair in the middle, cut it off and sell it to make bed clothes for young wood-peckers, lease it by the year for rat beds, plant it in spring peas or Early York cabbage, and take in bed-bugs to graze at a nickel a head. Rather than part it in the middle, let it go unkempt and matted, and fill it with corn or fishing-worms, and let your mother's hens and chickens scratch in it for a livelihood.—Brooklyn Chron.

Cultivation of Corn.

One of the principal causes of poor crops of corn is the neglect or delay in giving it the first workings. The hurry and anxiety to put in the cotton frequently causes the corn to be neglected until it receives an injury from which it never recovers. When the third and fourth blades appear the blow should run around it running as close as possible to the plants without covering them and running as deeply as possible. They should be plowed deeply so that the lateral roots which extend very rapidly may find a loose and fine bed to feed in. As the plants grow and the roots extend the plowing should be shallow until a sweep should be the only implement used. The hoe force should immediately follow the plow, thinning to a stand, and drawing soil earth to the young plants not leaving a single weed, blade of grass, or superfluous plant to rob the crop of a particle of the nutriment which belongs to the crops. Nothing should interfere its thorough performance. If this were properly attended to we should hear of few crops of five or six bushels to the acre even on what we call our poor lands.—Southern Farm Home.

Information Wanted.

Albert Shindelbower, 12 years old, a son of Wm. Shindelbower, of Nicholasville, left his father's house Tuesday morning, 16th of April, and has not since been heard of. Had on at the time he left, a blue cloth cap, plain pants, and gray jeans roundabout. He has a small, dark, hazel eye, and looks a little down when spoken to. Any information will be thankfully received by his anxious parents.

File Your Paper.

An exchange well says it is worth while to save your home paper and have it bound. A few years will make it the most instructive and entertaining volume you can possess. All the laws of association make it more or less a history of yourself and friends. Names, dates, facts, are preserved for you in the most accessible manner. Over it you may cry at your mistakes, laugh at your follies, and rejoice in the view of those steps that have led you to prosperity. It records the history of a town, and this is but an epitome of universal history.

TOBACCO ANTIDOTE.

"Without Money and Without Price."

We see thousands whose will is paralyzed by tobacco, who struggle to be free but give up in despair. They need an antidote for an insatiable appetite.

To such as are utterly stupefied by the drug, and such as revel in saliva and smoke-glorying in their shame—we make no appeal; but to such as "groan, being in bondage," longing to be free, we say, "Here is our antidote, friend, try it. We ask nothing for it."

Make the most of your will. Drop tobacco, and resolve never to use it again in any form.

Go to an apothecary shop, and buy ten cents worth of gentian root, coarsely ground.

Take as much of it after each meal, or oftener, as amounts to a common quid of fine-cut or cavendish.

Chew it well and swallow all the saliva.

Continue this a few weeks, and you will come off conqueror. Then thank God for freedom.

REASONS.

1. Gentian root is a tonic, bitter in taste, and will do much to neutralize and allay your taste for tobacco.

2. Gentian is a nerve. It will brace up your relaxed nerves, and save you from the "awful goodness" under which you agonize.

3. Gentian, for a short time, is an innocent substitute for the quid or pipe. It employs the mouth, beguiles attention, and gives a helping hand to the drowning man.

Abduction and Desertion.

A respectable old farmer, Jos. Owens, from Norris City, White county, Ill., was in our city on last Wednesday, in search of his daughter, Joan Owens, a young girl not quite 14 years old, who, he said, had been induced to run off with a neighbor named Russell Jones, alias Hicks, who had left a wife and three children. Jones is about 25 years of age, and he had coaxed the girl to desert her home, while on her way to school, leaving without any clothing, save what she had upon her person at the time. The seducer, Jones, had but little money at the time—the couple having walked nearly the entire distance. The distressed father learned that his erring child was seen in this city on Friday, 23d ultimo, but can trace her no further. In company with the police he visited Grace Howard's bawdy, but could learn nothing of his child. The scoundrel, Jones, should be penitentiary for life, if caught. No punishment is too severe for such a vile biped.—Henderson News.

Young ladies now at school, who expect to make their living by school-teaching, are advised to study the following report from Maine, which may stand for every other State in the Union: "The weekly wages of female teachers in the State is $3.50. Now, if a female teacher instruct both summer and winter, the twenty weeks of the school year, she will receive the magnificent sum of $72. That is, if a young woman come into Maine to teach for a living, each year she will get $72 and her board for twenty weeks, and for the remaining thirty-two weeks she must pay $24.24, the average teacher's board being $2.32 per week. She will, then, at the end of the year, be in debt $24.24, without paying one cent for culture, clothing or comfort."

A CASE which is likely to call forth all the emotional resources of a French jury is told as follows: A young man, having accepted a challenge from a noted duelist, goes home and tells his mother about it. The good lady rushes off distracted, to the house of the duelist, whom she finds practicing with a pistol in his garden, and what is worse, hitting the mark every time. She implores his mercy, but is coldly repulsed by the marksman, who declares his intention to kill her son. Thereupon, in her wrath and terror, the poor woman snatches up a pistol and shoots the duelist dead. The charges are that she will be acquitted, and indeed, it is difficult to imagine any case which offers more genuine extenuation. A jury of mothers, at least, would not deliberate upon their verdict.

One inch of rain fall distributes one hundred tons of water over an acre of ground. A suggestive fact, in a mechanical as well as an agricultural point of view.

SOME of the farmers of Warren county are claiming twenty-five bushels of wheat to the acre, from the growing crop.

WHAT is that which is full of knots, which no one can untie, and in which no one can tie another? A cord of wood.

Some people say that dark-haired girls marry first. We differ—it's the light-headed ones.

Why is South Carolina like a piano? Because the darkness (dark keys) are white.
